Project Entropia -

User's Guide to the Virtual Universe

Created and edited by : odd 'sir odd' Bunny

Made: January 19, 2006
By: odd 'sir odd' Bunny
Made for VU 8.0.2

Sir Odd's Official Guide to the virtual universe

Table of Contents—a must have in any guide ;)

Table of contents……p.2
Introduction……...p.4
Installation and Requirements……...p.5
Getting ready to enter the virtual universe……...p.7
Controls and how to move……p.8
Windows……...p.9
Welcome to Project Entropia!.....p.10
The interface……p.11
Getting from one place to another……p.12
Terminals and other machines……..p.13
Choosing a profession……...p.14
Hunting……..p.15
Crafting……..p.17
Mining……....p.19
Tailoring……p.21
Trading……..p.22
Sweating……...p.24
Mindforce……..p.26
Taming……..p.27
The Auctions……p.30
Money……p.31
Home and Estates……...p.32
PvP areas and rules……p.33
The mob……p.35
Items…...……...p.37
Armor……p.38
Mentorship……..……p.40

Many thanks to the people of EP for supplying much of this info and giving me the jump to succeed.

Table of Contents—a must have in any guide ;)

Manners and how to behave……..p.41

Societies……..……..……p.42

Slang Terms……..……...p.43

Maps……..……p.44

Credits……..……p.47

VU 8.0.2 updates……p.48

Project Entropia Conditions of Use ……..p.50

Introduction

Welcome to the virtual universe of Project Entropia, the first virtual reality with a real cash economy, and thank you for reading this guide to it.

NOTE: This is a guide created independently from MindArk. It is not a manual, just the experiences of the players who put it together.

Whether this is your first Online gaming experience, or your tenth, you will find the world of Project Entropia as one of the best games ever, sharp graphics, economy, hunting, meeting friends and comrades, all this...for free!

What this guide includes is the basic functions and items in Project Entropia, so your new life as an entropian will be made as easy as possible, with little trouble.

What's so special about this game? Is it the ability to make your character to whatever you want to be? Is it the real cash economy? Or is it the way to meet and make new friends from all over the world? For whatever your reason is, you've made a good choice.

From the small campsites to the sky-high buildings of Hadeshiem , to the widely popular and new 'club NEVERDIE', there is a place for you.

While Project Entropia is free for downloading and playing, your game playing experience will be much fuller if you deposit money into the game. Those who seek to make a load of money playing without putting in anything will be disappointed as the profits in game are less than what you would expect. While playing without deposit is possible, it's EXTREMELY difficult to do.

NOTE:At the time of this publication, VU 8.0.2 was in effect. Any UV's made after this cannot guarantee the stats or locations of the objects described in this guide.

Also, at the time of this publication there has been no map created for CLUB NEVERDIE!, so that's why it's not posted.

Above all, have fun. It's a mighty big world out there. Your time is now. :D

-odd 'sir odd' Bunny

Installation

Installation of Project Entropia on your machine

Glad you made the choice to visit Project Entropia! Before you can begin your adventure, take some time to look over the requirements for downloading it to your PC. It's a good game, but be aware it won't run on just any computer.

Requirements:

- Windows 2000 or Windows XP
- Minimum 512 MB RAM
- Minimum 1 GHz Intel / AMD CPU
- Minimum NVIDIA GeForce or ATI Radeon graphics card
- Minimum screen resolution 1024x768
- DirectX compatible sound device
- 3 GB free hard drive space
- DirectX version 9.0c
- Internet Connection

As from the project-Entropia download site

Just click on the 'download' button on the main page to begin.

First, download the installer, which is about 8 MB in size. However, this is only the first part. Now through the installer you have to download about 1.2 Gig worth of files.
It is highly recommended this be done by a high speed connection such as DSL -- do not attempt by dial-up. It will take too long for it all to download. Even with a high speed connection, expect to wait a few hours.

Also, it is recommended that you have higher than the minimum requirements for more enjoyable game play. Players who do not meet the requirements may still be able to play, but no guarantee is in place that it will run.

Installation

Installation of Project Entropia on your machine (Continued)

Troubleshooting and problems

Q: What if I need to stop the downloading process for a reason? Will my download be lost?

A: No. If you abort your download at any time, once you resume downloading it will begin where you left off. (quite handy :D)

Q: Can I play with dial-up?
A: Yes, but be warned: It's not good for playing PE with. Side-effects include: latency (or mostly referred to as 'lag'), crashes to desktop, and few others. For best results with dial-up, go to the 'options' button on the client loader, and turn off all visual effects, as this will improve game play, but will not eliminate all problems.

Just click on the 'download' button on the main page to begin.

Getting ready to enter the virtual universe

Apply for an account

Almost done! All that's left is to apply for an account.

Click on the 'apply/register for an account' button on the top of the Project Entropia website.

First comes the Conditions of Use for using the game. Read it! It is required before opening an account! It contains information regarding how you use it.

After agreeing to the Conditions of Use, fill out the player information as thoroughly as possible. Your account will be approved more quickly with accurate information. The waiting period can be anywhere between 10 minutes and several days, depending on weather your application is flagged for manual viewing.

When you receive an e-mail confirming your access to Project Entropia, you're ready to begin!

Good Luck!

Click 'apply/Register of an account' to get yourself registered.

Controls and how to move around

How to find your footing around Project Entropia

While in most games you can dive in without reading the instruction Manual (yes, you!), it is recommended you read how to interact with the Project Entropia environment before stepping foot on Calypso. This way you're not stuck in the same spot for ten minutes, wondering how to go forward or backwards.

Movement Controls:

- W—Walk foreword
- S—Walk backwards
- D—Sidestep right
- A—Sidestep left
- E—Jump
- Q—Run
- B—Open/close quick menu bar
- F—Open/close the Hall of Fame (HOF) menu
- H—Open/close the in-game help window
- O—Opens option menu
- J—Open/close friend menu
- K—Open/close avatar info window
- M—Open/close the map window
- I—Open/close your inventory window
- X—Open/close emote book
- P—Prints your current position in the chat window
- C—Prints the game time in the chat window, as well as how long you been playing
- T—Enables you to teleport to the nearest revival terminal in 60 seconds
- ALT—Select yourself
- Spacebar—Enable/disable aim mode
- Hold down Mouse wheel, and move mouse up, down, left or right - look around(1st person), change camera angle(3rd person) Left mouse button—Walk to clicked location, select an object
- Right mouse button—Brings up mini-menu
- Hold right and left mouse buttons—Run in direction pointed to
- Enter—Lets you type in the chat window. Press Enter again to send it.
- ESC—Exits Project Entropia, click yes or no on the menu that shows up

Note: The button configuration can be changed by accessing the in-game option window.

TIP: Keep the #3 tile on your quick bar, to 'run'. You will use it often. Trust me ;).

Windows

This window does what…?

While playing you will need to access different game windows to fully enjoy the game. Here is a list of the windows and their functions.

The Windows:

- Currency window—this is where you can deposit and withdraw money to the virtual universe. For more information on this window, see the 'money' section.
- Help window—Here you can get a quick reference on the controls while you roam Calypso.
- Map window—Brings up the map where your at, pinpointing your current location, and locations which you have located and TP's you've accessed. Also useful for avoiding (or finding) PvP zones.
- Avatar window—Helpful window that shows your avatar's name, their top 3 professional standings, what society they belong to, and pages and pages of information of your avatar's skills. Also check for your disciple/mentor relations.
- Inventory window—Shows the items your avatar is currently holding. Splits the items into different categories for easy managing. You may also add/remove clothes, armor and implants.
- Friend list—keep track of your friends, and their online/offline status.
- Emote window—Useful for filling your quick menu bar with actions (i.e. run, operate, sweat). Not to mention choose between different dances, poses and emotions.
- Options window—shows options to change key commands and textures. Best if left alone, until you are familiar with all the controls, though messing with them can have unattended side effects.
- Hall of Fame window—Opens the HOF window, where you can see the avatars who made it big in the last 24 hours in their respective areas. Also displays the All Time Highs on those who hit ubbers.

TIP: Use the 'rename' function to name your buddies so you can remember them. For example, if you sell resources to a player, you can rename them 'iron buyer'.

Welcome to Project Entropia!

Start living the good life of an entropian

You've installed Project Entropia, got your account approved, and now your set. Open the client loader, type your username and password in, then press enter to begin!

Choosing your avatar:

First, this is the fun part; but not only that, but probably the most important steps you will undertake in Project Entropia: customizing your own avatar! Choose the general stuff, like your gender, hair, skin, and work your way into the really specific stuff, like your cheekbones and chin. With over 20 different options with even more settings, the possibilities are literally endless.

NOTE:The buttons that show clothes and armor on your avatar do not come with your avatar. Those are just for checking how good your avatar will look in them!

ALSO NOTE: Be sure to pick things you like! You will not be able to change your avatars look after this, so be sure that you will want to stick with what you got for as long as you play.

After you confirm your avatar's look, you will be prompted to name you avatar. You will be required to give a first, last, and a 'nick name' for your avatar. The default name that will show up above you in the game is your nick name, but can be changed by going to your avatar information screen. Note however that your nick will be the default EVERY time you log in, so unless you like the habit of changing it every time you play, make it count. While making your nick name "Stinker Pants" seems funny at first, others may soon be cracking jokes and soon you'll be the one paying for it.

NOTE: This also cannot be changed, so pick a name you wish to have your avatar represent you in the game. MA will not tolerate inappropriate names.

Make all your decisions before you begin playing.

The Interface

This is the interface you will be using during your time in Project Entropia. Above is the display, and below is the explanation of each area outlined.

1—Status Bar: Carries a lot of important information. From the far left is the item or weapon name and ready bar. When an object is used, it has to regenerate to 100% before being used again. Next to it is the little green figure. This mainly displays the health of oneself: green means your alive, orange means your in a pvp zone, and if it's red your dead. Next to it is your health and name bar. The amount of green shown corresponds to the amount of health you have left. When you die it turns red. At the bottom is the amount of PED (Project Entropia Dollars) you currently have on your PED card. Any PED or PEC not on the card is not counted.

2—Main menu: Where you can access the many windows of the game. Quick and handy on the fly. Also note the little blue box on the left hand corner next to the 'Deposit' Button that will flash if you encounter a new event or object.

3—Radar: Helpful for getting around the world of Calypso. You're in the center, other avatars are green dots, dead avatars are white, mob are red, dead mob are blue, team mates are yellow and society members are purple. Also activate the button on the corner to see a different, but maybe a better radar view. Also people's pets appear as yellow dots (regardless if it's yours or not).

4—Chat window: Without this handy window, life as an entropian would be pretty dull. Press enter once to type a message and press enter again to put it up on the chat window. White messages are people chat, blue is society chat, light blue is team chat, green is good, orange and red are usually bad messages, and yellow are warnings about something that is happening (i.e. 'this mob has no loot', the object you are using is damaged' etc.) that should get your attention.

5— Quick bar: A handy toolbar that lets you execute emotes or equip tools and weapons with the point of the mouse instead of rummaging through your inventory. Has 9 slots, each with 12 spaces for you to put all your favorite dance moves as well as your guns ;)

6—Loot window: Not actually a menu window, but it's a window you'll be hoping to see often. What's inside it is yours to keep. Just hope there's more than what's shown here ;P.

Getting from one place to another

Get from Port Atlantis to Nyphtown in 5 seconds flat

In this day in time, running for a few feet to a few miles will not stop an entropian from getting a good run in. This means you do not have to rest or eat to run again. However, carrying items in your inventory can weigh you down, thus either not affect your running, slow you down a bit, or even prevent you from running at all. To check your stats go to your inventory screen and you'll see the weight you're currently carrying. Green is full run, yellow is a jog, and red means you can only walk.

When you begin, running will be your only mode of transportation. When you exit Port Atlantis, be sure to grab the TP at the exit. Why can't you do anything with it? Well, believe it or not, you need to visit other teleporters for it to work. So, go to any town or camp and collect them all! At this time, there are about 45 TP's between the main continent and the new one (with Treasure Island). You can see the TP placements on the map section of this guide. To get the new TP, run to it.

Also, be sure to take at least one trip into space. Some people in the game own hangers with ships that can take people to the two space stations in orbit. While going to space is fun, it's not cheap. The owners have to constantly repair and re-fuel their ships, so expect about a 30 PED price tag for a single passenger. The return cost is a bit lower around 5-10 PED.

NOTE: There are no storage containers at CLUB NEVERDIE! So pack lightly for the big trip if you plan to mine or hunt there for extended times.

Another mode of transportation is using the TP mind chips that can be bought from people and auctions. Though it requires some level of concentration and mind power, it can be a quick escape from a mob attack or in the middle of nowhere.

To get from one continent to the other, go to any TP, activate it, then on the map window click 'change continent' button. If you never have gone before you will be teleported to Treasure Island. Same for getting back.

Down at Hadeshiem there have been some land vehicles on display for all to see. Perhaps cars and motorcycles in the future…?

TIP: Use TP's to get from one side of the map to the other to avoid wasting time and mob attacks.

Terminals and other machines

Get to know your terminals

There are many terminals in Calypso, each having it's own special function. Using each one will be critical for your success no matter what profession you choose to be.

Trade Terminal (or most commonly referred to as 'TT')

These terminals are probably the one you'll visit most often when alive. Equipment, armor, weapons, everything you need to start off in the right direction. Not only does it spit out items, it will also accept any item you want to sell or cannot sell to other players. Just put it in the sell spot and it will calculate how much it will return to you. Note however, that some items have no TT value, thus you will receive no credit. Most players will use terms like 'TT+1 PED' to sell items to other players. One must be able to know the TT price to fully understand the pricing of the item.

Repair terminal

Using items and weapons in Project Entropia decays the item, thus slowly eating away at it's value until it is 'damaged', or cannot be used at all. This is where the repair terminal comes in. Placing objects in the terminal can repair a percentage or completely repair an object. In order for this to happen you must pay for the repairs using your PED card. You cannot repair anything that does not have a condition meter, and you can not repair an item beyond its capacity.

Revival Terminal

When you kick the can, you'll be teleported to the nearest revival terminal. Usually these are posted in cities and containers spread throughout the area, so there's always one nearby. You lose nothing (unless in the pvp 3 zone), but your health is very low so either wait a few minutes for it to recharge itself or get a First Aid Pack (or more commonly known as 'fap') or other medicine to heal yourself.

Society Terminal

These are posted in towns and cities. At the society terminal you can look up what societies are ruling in Project Entropia, what they do and who is the leader and then some. If you wish to join a soc, send an application from here, where the leader of the soc will determine if you can join or not. Leaders of a soc will have more options than those who don't. For more info check the 'society' section of this guide.

Storage Terminal

Unlike the other terminals, this one is unique since it stores items for each player. Each player can have up to 500 items stored in his/her storage unit. If you have over 500, invest in a storage box, which can hold items, then put that into the storage unit. Needless to say, you have A LOT of room. Don't put too many items that can be stacked on each other, however, as this not only takes up room, but can mess up the window ;P

TIP: When you are revived at one of these your health is at 1. Don't go charging into a fight until your health is up some.

Choosing a profession

What do you want to be when you grow up?

There are a lot of different professions in the world of Project Entropia. What you choose to be depends on your taste. Have a taste for sniping and slicing? Perhaps dealing with tools and blueprints is your hobby? Read below for a small description of each one. While there are many the common ones are listed here.

Hunter

Nothing like wielding a combat enblade and charging into a mass of foes with nothing but victory in mind. Or you can play keep away and snipe your foes even before they knew what hit them. This should be a must for everybody, even if they do other professions later.

Mining

Do ya feel lucky? How lucky is the question you should ask yourself before placing that bomb on the ground. While it's one of the most difficult professions there is, its also one of the most rewarding.

Crafting

Ah, the quiet life. Stay indoors and make weapons, armor, furniture and everything else that a entropian would make for a living. Get some air once in a while though...

Tailor

Not crafting machines, but clothes. Shirts, pants, hats, even glasses. Make yourself and everyone you tailor for look like celebrities.

Medic

When your group is hunting, a medic is a nice addition. A medic could be the difference between a kill or be killed situation. Grab your fap and get moving.

TIP: Most should start with hunting. This is the easiest profession to begin and offers good looting opportunities.

Hunting

Get 'yer gear it's hunting season

Hunting is probably the best occupation for most people, even if you are considering doing another profession. While you'll want to be one of the other hunters with the big minisweeper and tough armor, you will have to work your way up the hunting ladder to be known as a good hunter.

First Things First

First question you should ask yourself: Ranged or melee? Both offer advantages and disadvantages, and depending on what type of weapon you choose. Below is a guide to help you out:

Ranged:

Good for everyone to know a bit of ranged skills. Get ammo from the TT and go hunting. To give you an edge you can buy a amplifier or scope to improve your hunting game. Decay is not much of an issue, but keeping a high number of rounds is essential for winning mob.

Melee:

Fighting with blades is more interesting since going head to head with the mob will be tough. Get the right weapon and you can deal out an impressive amount of damage. No ammo is required, and no need for scopes and amplifiers. However the decay is a bit steeper than ranged, and good armor is also a must when hunting bigger mob.

TIP: Getting a Jester D-1 from somebody is a good start for hunting.

Now that you've made a choice, visit your local TT and pick out your weapon. If you can find somebody who is selling a Jester D-1 it is a nice gun to start hunting with. The decay is low and the ammo burn is also minimal so you can hit a lot of targets will little loss.

Also, if your budget allows, ask around for some pixie or goblin armor. These offer great protection against the low level mobs and are light weight so they won't weigh you down.

Now that you have everything, time to hunt!

Camp phoenix is a great place to hunt. So find your way there and go hunt and shoot small mobs. Like snablesnots. These little guys do minimal damage while easy to kill. They also drop some decent loots for newcomers. You can also take on the other mob there as well, once your ready to up the mob.

Hunting (continued)

Hunting Tips

Bigger isn't always better

While you are a newcomer, you might think getting that MK II will make you get loot left and right with no trouble whatsoever. However, more often than not you will miss, not get anything, or do little damage. This is because you have no skills. Somebody with a level 1000 rifle skill will fair far better than you will. Do yourself a favor: start small. I know it's a pain but everyone started that way and got better, so they could have the nice MK II. Same goes for blades.

Use the buddy system

Going it alone all the time isn't really a good thing. The last thing you need is to be fighting a tough mob then have it either critically hit you or have two other mob come finish you off, thus you have wasted time, health, ammo, and perhaps a good loot. Backup is always a good thing, no matter what.

Take more than what's needed

Have way more ammo than you think is needed. Many times you either missing a lot or you come across several more mobs than you expected . Nothing screams goner louder than fighting a fefford and running out of ammo. Without ammo, that gun isn't so great…

TIP: Get more than one weapon, so you can have backup incase your primary goes out of action.

Hunt for a time

While you might get frustrated that hunting is producing little return, keep hunting. The longer you hunt the better it will get. There is sort of a 'good loot bad loot' cycle.

Know what to keep and what to TT

While you hunt you will also get many items from the mob other than PECs and PEDs. Animal hides and wool are most common, but are no good for hunters. Either sell them to tailors who can make clothes out of them or take them to the TT, though your returns will be higher from someone else. Keep the armor and other things that can be used yourself, even if it's value is low.

Use decoys

Placing these at the right time can help distract a mob so you can either fire upon it or escape.

Don't give up! :)

Crafting

No assembly required.

Not in the mood for spilling blood? Then sit back in the light glow of the assembly machines…

Hopefully you have a lot of money on hand and a bit of luck on your shoulder.

First Things First

Go to a technician and grab some blueprints (bp's). Make sure you grab the corresponding book to put them in. Bp's are 1 PEC each while the books are 1 PED each.

Next grab the resources need to craft. Either buy them from miners or get in the auction and buy some. You can find out what's needed by right clicking the bp.

Getting ready:

Now is the time to pick what you REALLY want to craft. Staying and crafting in one specific area will not only increase your skills, but it will also increase the chances of success, as well as increase the quality rating of the bp your using. The higher the quality, the higher the success you will have. The areas are:

- Weapons
- Armor
- Furniture
- Components
- Attachments

TIP: Get lots of everything you need to craft.

Now find any crafting machine (in most large containers and cities), and operate it. As of this time you can craft anything on any machine, regardless of what your making. Open the book that you want to find the bp of what you are going to craft. Click on the bp, then drag the resources necessary to the item drop spot. When the words turn green you have enough to start crafting.

You will notice the success bar on the side of the window. This shows how much probability you have to get an item out. Crafting often increases this.

You will also notice a slider with 'condition' and 'quantity' on it. This means that either you can make more items with your crafting, or you can get a better overall product with your try.

When you are ready, press the crafting button to begin.

Crafting (continued)

Crafting Tips

Not to make people worried, but when you begin your first tries will mostly end in failure to make anything. You lose the resources, and you get a sad message saying nothing came back. If your halfway lucky you will get some residue. It's not the item you wanted but at least it's something. Just sell it at the TT and get some PEC back. But, if your really lucky, the item you wished to craft will appear in the window. Congratulations! You will feel proud as you close the crafting window with the item inside it. What you want to do with it is completely up to you. Some keep the items for themselves, while others put them on the auction for others to buy.

Again, as I said in hunting, be persistent!

While your beginning products will be not in demand due to being very common, most likely either keep for yourself or TT it. But as your crafting wares get more expensive, the more people will want to buy.

More is merrier

You should collect as many resources as you can hold. Craft enough for around 10-100 tries. That way you will be certain that you WILL get something back.

TIP: When using components, use the 'quantity' setting.

Get more bp's

While you craft you might get a bp in the window. While this is good, the bp is completely random, so you don't know what your going to get. The best way to expand your crafting book is to buy at the auction. The prices might be steep, but you'll have it and not need to worry about it.

Can you work in more than 1 area?

Yes, which might be a good thing for starter crafters. Just experiment for a bit and see what you like. However, if you continue doing this, your knowledge in any area will be lower, thus your probability for success will drop.

What else about residue?

You can also use residue in the craft window to upgrade a successful crafting attempt's condition a bit. Though it won't do much you'll be glad to have it.

Mining

Blow that iron ingot out of the sky

Looking for a challenge are we? Then mining is for you. Why? Well, for one thing, there is no neon sign that says where to mine. Under your feet is either a bunch of dirt or a 1000 PED iron deposit. You have to kiss your lucky rabbit foot and pray you hit something.

First Things First

Think about what you want to mine: Mineral ores or energy ematter? Either way you will need the basic tools for both. Mining equipment is divided into three sections:

- Resource finders
- Resource Extractors
- Refiners

Once you pick your choice buy the equipment and then buy either seismic bombs or ematter probes to mine with. You will need quite a few to begin with.

Getting ready:

Got your stuff? Now your ready. Equip your resource finder, then run to wherever you think there might be a deposit. Then activate the finder. Either a bomb drops or a probe burrows into the ground, then you wait for a few seconds. It shows the screen 'searching for deposits…' then either it shows up as 'there are no deposits', or if your lucky it will show you where it is, how big the deposit is, and it might show what resource you found. Walk over to the spot where it is, and you get the claim deed for it. Good job mate!

TIP: Ores are less common than ematters, but have bigger deposits.

Now it's time to get out your extractor and get the resources out of the ground and into your inventory. Activate the extractor when next to the site, and you will get the loot window with the resource in it. If you hit a fairly large spot you will need to extract it a few times to get everything. For those who hit a major vast a drill tower will be made, where you can come and empty it every once in awhile until you get it all.

Now you can either take your products straight to market, or you can take your refiner and refine the items. While unrefined is good, crafters are more likely to buy refined materials, and usually at a higher price. When all is said and done, buy more bombs or probes and do it all over again!

While for some there are at least three mining theories for every person who mines so you will hear lots of theories on finding claims. However, most if not all of them will be wrong. Stick with your gut feeling and you'll hit something soon.

Also, it really doesn't matter where you mine, as all land terrain carries ore or ematter.

Mining (continued)

Mining Tips

Mining is like a good blood vain

If you find a good deposit, take about 10 steps away from the spot you mined, then try again. Chances are if you get another one you hit a vain. There are deposits in a line which can be a good profit...if you find them.

Mine in the PvP (if you dare)

While this is obviously a bad area to be in, these areas are quite rich in materials. Just be sure to pack an extra gun in your mining equipment bag if needed...

If it isn't ground, don't mine it.

You cannot mine underwater. There's nothing down there, and a waste of a bomb or probe. You can bomb and probe the coastal areas, however and still get deposits.

Pick it clean while it's still there

While you found a deposit, the site will remain anywhere from 10 minutes to 24 hours, depending on the size of the resources. Don't forget about it if you have to leave the site for a reason. To see the exact time remaining on the claim, check the claim deed by right clicking on it in your inventory.

Take lots of bombs

Most say take around 20-40 bombs per trip for a small if not decent return. If your first few fail to yield anything, keep running a few seconds from your previous spot and try again.

TIP: Mine ematter to begin with, then move to ores. While ematters are more common, the deposits are smaller.

Tailoring

Look stylin' on the runway

While I'm sure you enjoy your colonist jumpsuit, I get rid of those as fast as possible. A very good profession for those who want to keep up with the trends.

First Things First

Not too much to worry about here, but you'll needs lots of supplies to begin. Buy the 15 PED Goot Tailoring Material Refiner at...you guessed it, the TT. Also get the omega paint gun. A mere 2 PED. Then buy lots of animal hides and skins from noobies, who will like the coins, and you get your hides. Or hunt them yourself. Either way you win ;)

Get the bp's from an auctioneer , then go to any crafting machine to begin!

Getting ready:

Just hope that you get at least a few pairs of pants or shirts out. There, you just made yourself some not pretty (but at least wearable) clothes. Time to make them a bit brighter.

Get some paint, which there's usually quite a few people at the auctions who are selling a lot of paint. You will need a lot, something other than having your painter machine reading 'you need a miracle'. YES, it actually says that. 2 cans won't do. Nor will 20. Need a lot.

TIP: Red, purple and light green are quite hard to find, thus expect a steep price.

If you are a bit experienced, and want to get a little crazy, mix some of the skins (i.e. snablesnot, atrox skins) to make unusual pattern clothes. It's also a good way to get more profit from these.

When your done, try them on and see for yourself how you look in your own clothes. Quite rewarding.

Trading

The heart of Project Entropia

Trading is part of what makes Project Entropia tick. Supply and demand. Needs increase, so does the price. Surplus, and the price drops. To be a trader you have to keep up with the latest market reports and what people are buying. To be a trader you have to know when to buy low, sell high. It will take a long time to wait for the results, but you will come out ahead in the end.

First Things First

Have a chunk of PED to begin with. The auctions will be your main point of resources. Bid on small items, like pixie and goblin armor. For it to be a good deal you have to make sure:

- The TT price is somewhat reasonable
- The asking price isn't more than 1-2 PED of the TT
- There's nothing requiring the item your bidding on to have something else on it (i.e. amps, scopes).

Marking your territory:

Now that you got some goods make your way to some crowded location (twin peaks, Port Atlantis, etc) and start announcing your wares. Be sure to put a PED or two on the price so you can get a profit. Once you sell all your wares, go back to the auctions and repeat. If not, re-locate to a different location. People who buy from you will be more attentive on coming back to see if you have something new to sell.

TIP: Start with small items that might appeal to newcomers. They will buy with little profit for yourself. Pixie and goblin armor are popular starting armor.

Upgrading:

Once you have a nice chunk of PED you can probably get a few higher-priced items and sell those to more experienced players. Again, check the TT value and the asking price. Soon you should hopefully be reaping the rewards of your well spent time and effort.

Trading (continued)

Trading Tips

Double check the stats

While paying 2 PED for a combat enblade—3 is a dirt cheap investment, be sure to consider that it's either broken or near broken, and that it will cost 15 PED or more to repair it to full condition. Ask for other prices on other sellers before committing to buying an object.

Know the prices

When someone says 'TT + 2 PED', it helps to know what the TT price is.

Sellers: Avoid scammers

Every once in a while you will come across somebody that will try to get your items at below TT value. Either they spit out a few PECs for a 4 PED item or try to negotiate with either lies or say they will 'return' the item once their done with it. Do not give in to these people, as they are up to no good.

Buyers: Avoid scammers

Last thing you need is for somebody to want you to buy their 100 Lysterium bars (3 PED at this time) for 7 PED. Don't buy it. Yes, you have to be reasonable at times, but something that is beyond your comfort level of buying isn't worth it. Stick with people you buy often from.

TIP: Don't give Sweat to the TT...the price is zero.

Don't keep dead weight

If you have an item(s) that you haven't sold in a period of time, either store it for yourself or TT it for a return if nothing else. Putting it on the auction will cost a PED to put out and if you can't sell it it's probably not worth your time.

Also, a helpful site for checking prices:

http://www.mytwopecs.com

Sweat Gathering

Yes, that's what you do.

While being a noobie has it's downfalls, you can do at least one thing right: sweat! Yep, that's right: collect the sweat off mobs. Long and boring as it is, if you can't deposit you'll be glad to get every bottle you collect.

First Things First

What's required? Nothing! But literally, have nothing in your hands when you begin, then of course, find a mob to sweat.

Ready, Set, Sweat!

You have to get relatively close to the target mob. On your radar it must be within the second inner circle. Once in range, right—click the mob, select 'Gather Sweat', and your avatar will perform a little pow-wow dance and hum a bit and have a weird glow around your character (see picture). During this time, you cannot move an inch or be hit with a weapon, otherwise you will be distracted and lose your concentration. Thus, you have to start over again. It takes a while to gather much if any, and it's not a big money maker, but hey, it's free.

Collect:

Once you succeed to concentrate, your hands will have a green glow to them. Now click the target mob again, and you will see a green worm-hole type ray shooting from you to the mob. During this time you can move and get hit without losing your concentration, so if needed move away from the target.

If you fail, you will receive a message in the chat window saying it failed.

However if you succeed, you will get a loot window with between 1-22 bottles of sweat. Now repeat until a message appears saying 'You can no longer sweat this creature'. The Mobs can only be sweated so much that they can no longer produce sweat, then they become 'dry'. Then find a new mob and sweat again.

Collect as much as possible, then sell it off to a player who is buying.

TIP: Get as close as you can without getting the mob's attention. The mob must be within the second circle of your radar to be in range.

Sweating (continued)

Sweating Tips

Make it easier to sweat

Go to your emotes book, and put sweat gathering on your quick access bar. This way you only have to punch a key to begin instead of trying to click the mob a dozen times.

Know the prices

Prices move, so know when to sell. Don't give to TT, it will not pay anything no matter how much you give it.

Sell in bulk

Buyers tend to give a bit more per bottle if there is a large amount to be bought.

Sellers: Avoid scammers

There are those who want to buy sweat at half of the street price of sweat, or those who say they buy for one price but they don't think the seller is counting how much he/she will get. Have a calculator nearby so you can re-check the buyer's amount on the table.

Don't sweat it

A few mobs in the game (robots, etc.) cannot produce sweat, so none can be collected.

There is such a thing as too good

While you may think that sweating is a long time gold mine, don't get too excited: Once your mind becomes too developed, you will no longer be able to gather sweat. Hope you saved some money from the sells.

TIP: Don't give Sweat to the TT...the price for sweat is 1 PEC per 1000 bottles.

Mindforce

Release your mind

Nothing beats shooting fire from your hands. While not as sharp as a sword using mindforce has its advantages.

First things first

Get an implant. These can be bought from the market or can be looted. Starting with an Aa implant is the best way to go. Go to your inventory page, then activiate the mindforce icon next to the avatar. Then drag the implant to your avatar to implant it. Then put a mindforce chip in the implant, then activate it.

Flavors of chips

There are a few different chips that you can use, you have to be experienced enough to use them. They are:

- Focus chips—Help by not being interrupted by mob attacks during concentration
- Nerve blast chips—A range attack.
- Fire blast chips—More potent attack.
- Heal chips—These help heal injured avatars
- Teleporter chips—Takes you anywhere you need to go.
- Resurrection chips—Brings dead avatars back from the dead.

TIP: Be sure your concentration skills is high enough to begin mindforce.

Be experienced

It helps to have sweated yourself to the point where you no longer can sweat before attempting mindforce powers.

Start low

Both implants and chips have different power levels, so be sure to get your level chip.

To switch

Double click the implant, and the old one comes out. Then just drag the new one in.

Taming

Whip it good!

Still under development at the time of this, the taming skill area is still quite small with some large possibilities. Perhaps your mob 'pet' can help hunt other creatures? Find mining spots? Who knows, time will tell.

First Things First

Get a whip. Not cheap, but it's the only thing required to start off with. You'll need more stuff if and when you succeed.

Taming the wild

In order to tame a mob it must have the two color bars on top of the name. They resemble the mob's spirit. Hitting it with a whip causes a red bar to appear above the yellow ones, and the yellow decreases. Each successful whipping raises the respect and lowers the spirit. Only when the spirit is gone, the respect is full and the creature's health is almost depleted will you have done your job. If not something has not been done, either the health is too high or the respect isn't high enough.

If in the middle of taming the creature attacks you, the respect will decrease as it has hit you.

Once and only once have you done this, quickly execute the 'attempt tame' icon in the emotes book. If successful, the yellow and red bars will disappear, and you have tamed a mob to become your pet.

TIP: A Snablesnot is the easiest one to tame and train.

Bringing home your new pet

Once you have a pet, likely it will be hungry. In order for it to do anything, you will have to feed it nutrio bars (which is a combination of sweet stuff and any fruit). Must have at least 200 bars in order for you to do anything with your pet. Feed it by equipping the bars then using them on the pet. The violet bar above it, which means the hunger status, shows how hungry it is. The green represents the trust, and the amount of experience it has is the blue bar.

Use a brush to increase the pet's trust in you. These can be made by crafting.

Once you have fed it, it will be ready for a bit of play. Using the different actions in your emote book under the 'taming' section, you can order it to do a number of things, such as stand on two legs or follow you around. Doing each of these can increase the experience bar, thus allowing you to do more complex tricks.

Putting it away

If you are going to log off for a time (minutes or hours or even days), it is best to take your pet to a nearby stable. Go near the person next to the stables (with the pet of course), and then click 'stable'. Then your pet will disappear and you will receive a deed in your inventory. When you return and want to see it again, return to the stable and double click the deed.

Taming (continued)

Taming Tips

PED is good thing

Whips at this point are quite expensive, as well as the other tools and accessories needed. The constant need for nutrio bars will burn a hole quick if your not covered for it.

Choose your whip wisely

Getting a whip that is too strong can actually kill your mob before you can attempt to tame it. Getting a viper 3 whip does minimal damage and is meant for taming.

Be sure to stable!

Pets left to fend for themselves after you log off will be left for about 10 minutes before they 'auto-stable' themselves. Thus next time you log in, you go to the stables to retrieve it. However, leaving it by itself cases it's trust, energy and experience to drop, thus your hard work and PED are wasted. Be sure to stable your pets when your done.

Be sure to brush your pet

Petting your pet with a brush will raise it's trust in you. Obviously it needs to be a brush. Trying to brush it with an combat enblade will not make it feel comfortable.

Can I have more than 1?

Yes, but if you just started have only 1. As your taming skills increase, the number of tamed mob you have can increase.

TIP: Have lots of PED ready before you start taming.

Many thanks to Gavin 'Hawkeye' Hill for creating an excellent guide for taming.

The Auction

Going once…

Perhaps the best trading economy isn't person to person, but person to the world.

Where one can place an item on the auction and have it go to the highest bidder. This section will explain the workings of the auction and how you can benefit from it.

First Things First

Well, depending who you are, either you're here to bid on an item or place an item to be bid on. Both will be covered. Obviously if you're the bidder you need PED, and obviously if you're a seller you need things to sell.

Selling items:

You can place anything you want to sell on the auction at any time. Meet with any auctioneer, then when the auction screen appears, press the 'sell' button. Then the seller screen appears. Place the desired item in the slot, then you are presented with a few options on how you want your item to be sold. The first one ask how long you wish to have your item up for bid. You can choose between 1 day to 7. Next is to set the starting price on the item. Click the arrows up and down until you have the desired price. Then you are asked if you want to have a buyout. A buyout is a price that is preset so if someone met the buyout, the auction for that item would end, and the person immediately wins the item. Although the price is higher on a buyout, some people are willing to pay a little more to get the item in their hands right away than wait several hours or days. After setting those up, confirm the settings. A window will pop up warning you of a 1 PED charge for putting the item up. Click yes, then your done.

You can check the status of all your items you have in the auction by checking the 'my items' in the left hand menu.

If for some reason you wish to take off the item due to no bidders or you want it back, click on the item you wish to take off, then click 'remove'. Note that it cannot be removed if there is a bid on it, nor can you recover the 1 PED charge that was taken on the item.

Buyer:

Once you find an auctioneer and talk to it, your first screen is a list of the last calls. These are items that are about to expire. You can look at these, or find the new deals by clicking the 'latest items' on the left hand menu. Or, if your looking for something specific, you can browse through the selection menu to find what your looking for. Once you find something you wish to bid on, double click the item or go to the 'view' button. The next screen shows the actual item, as well as the starting bid, the current bid, the buyout (if set), the seller's name and a list of players who had bid on the item since it was put out.

TIP: Placing a buyout can get your items sold faster.

The Auction (continued)

Going twice…

Placing an order
An advanced option on the auctions is that you can now set a procurement order in the auction. What it basically does is it tries to find items that are in bulk, either from one seller or many, that are within a set price range. Any seller that has the match of the specifications will be automatically bid on, if not bought directly. If the quantity of the item or price is over the limit set, it will not be a match therefore not bothered with. The order can last as long as the player wants it to keep trying to find the ideal order for him/her.

NOTE: Only matches with buyout prices will be dealt with.

To create an order is a charge of 1 PED/day you want it to be working. Note that this is paid when the order is created, and that if the order is met before the limit, you will not get repaid for the remaining days.

TIP: Put an order for buying items in bulk (i.e. resources)

Know what your selling

If the item you are selling is a common item, don't make the starting bid ridicules. Anyone who can get a better condition item with fewer PEDs will just pass by your items with a laugh. Price to sell. On the other hand if it is a rare or expensive item, you may want to give a bit of a boost so to not only get more, but get competition from those who want it. When people compete for your items, you win.

Warning!

You can actually put a starting bid that is lower than the actual value of an item. While most people know this, you could LOSE money on the market. Don't make this mistake.

Buyer:

Once you find an auctioneer and talk to it, your first screen is a list of the last calls. These are items that are about to expire. You can look at these, or find the new deals by clicking the 'latest items' on the left hand menu. Or, if your looking for something specific, you can browse through the selection menu to find what your looking for. Once you find something you wish to bid on, double click the item or go to the 'view' button. The next screen shows the actual item, as well as the starting bid, the current bid, the buyout (if set), the seller's name and a list of players who had bid on the item since it was put out.

Note:

Items with a (L) tagged on to the end signify that the item is a limited item. These are usually good items, but they cannot be repaired at all. Also, in the event that Project Entropia is down, the auctions will STILL be operational. This means the highest bidder last to bid on an item will be the winner once the servers are back up. Also, Tuesday is a day when the servers will most likely be down for updates.

MONEY!

Who doesn't like the jingling sound of PED in their pocket?

Obviously, Project Entropia is all about money. The real cash economy. The fireworks of a global or an All Time High. Whatever your situation, money is key to having fun in PE.

First Things First

You will have a much easier time (and enjoyable) playing Project Entropia if you can put a small amount in at some intervals ($10 /month). While playing PE without depositing is still possible, it will be harder to get far.

The currency:

The currency on Calypso is the PED (Project Entropian Dollar), and the PEC (Project Entropian Cent). $1 USD equals 10 PED. If you wish to deposit in the game, login to your account and you can only place a $10 deposit for your avatar. Then when your bill comes in RL from your credit card company, use the code that is written on your statement to activate the PE deposit, then you are free to deposit however much and whenever you choose.

NOTE!

MA does not charge you for the deposit, but your bank will. So when you put in $10 USD, you're going to end up with about 97 PEDs instead of 100. Something to keep in mind.

TIP: Finding fruit on the ground is a plus for money making.

If you get a lot of money in game, you can also withdraw your PED back into real currency! Just go to the Money window in your main window, then hit withdraw.

No way to get money in? No problem!

Well, almost no problem...while your adventures will be extremely tougher than those who can, you are not dead yet. Use your sweat gathering abilities to the max and collect all the sweat you can get. Then sell the sweat and then get what is necessary to get more (i.e. hunt, mine, etc.). If you sell all your sweat and run out of PED, then either walk around Calypso searching for fruit or dung (which can be found anywhere!) The hint here is to walk, since it will be the only way to find it. Fruit and dung only appear if your are walking in the general area of it. If you walk too far out it will disappear, but will re-appear when you approach it again.

If you hate walking around you can also try for the oil rig. Every once in a while the rig will spit out free oil for anyone to take. Then you can take the oil and sell it for PED. Easy, right?

NO. The rig is in the center of a powerful mob herd that can tear even the most protected warriors have difficulty getting to it. And that isn't enough to stop you, then perhaps the other people in the PvP zone will pk you for it. Then you have to hope no one else beats you to it.

Home and Estates

Nothing like home sweet home :)

Where does your avatar sleep at night? On the ground with the snables (mine does), or in the comfort of your own home? Project Entropia makes it possible to own your own place to live, work, put a shop in, or even throw a party! What you do is up to you!

First Things First

Get an estate deed. They can be found either on the auction or by another player. Prices depend on the size of the place your getting. Prices are usually around 250 PED for a small apartment, 350 for a big larger one, then 450 for the largest. Expect to pay A LOT more for a house or hanger.

Once you have the deed, time to find your place. When you access it in your inventory, a map with the location will be displayed for easy findings. Once you find your place, access the corresponding estate panel to gain access. On the panel it will show the current owner, the capacity of the place, and the access status of the place. You will need to make it public so you may enter, and also have it unrestricted if you wish to place items in your new crib.

Upkeep

10 PED will be charged for upkeep every month. If you pay it you will continue to live there. If you do not pay it the door will lock and you will not be able to access it until you pay. Note that this charge applies to apartments only.

TIP: Start small, then if you need more room go bigger.

Houses

Some people can own houses. These are good for living in, as well as having your own shop. You can put manikins to display your clothing, as well as table to lay out your crafting wares. Note that you must buy the accessories yourself, as your new place will be bare when you buy it. You can also place shopkeepers to sell your stuff for you.

Hangars

Those who wish to do a bit of sightseeing, as well as make a little PED, can purchase a hanger. Hangers are like houses, but they include a spaceship. These ships can be taken to the space stations in orbit. While this seems like a good thing with no drawbacks, there is: The ships will probably need repairs, and refined oil will be needed to keep it going. So hanger owners charge more so they can afford to maintain their ships.

PvP areas and rules

Show who owns whom

Whether just for fun, hoping for a good mining spot or just to snipe noobies, come to one of the many areas where you can pk other people. While against the rules in most parts, there are areas of calypso that cannot protect those from each other. Refer to the map section to see the location of these areas and how to get to, or avoid them.

Finding a PvP zone

Finding them once you know where they are is easy. Get to the location, then a few events happen:

- A yellow or red circle appears on your map, displaying the area of the unsafe zone.
- Your normally green status figure on your hub turns to a waving orange. This means your in the zone.
- Usually signs posted along the border warning of your position to the zone.

Mob

Most mob in the PvP are particularly tough, so people aren't your only concern.

Rundown

A list of the places to pk and little description of each. While not the official names, they are the order in which MA came out with.

- PvP1—the first area designated as a pk area by MA. Weaker mob than in the other areas, and a nice flat spot for mining and sniping. Near the edge of the ocean so if in trouble take a swim. Near Port Atlantis.
- PvP2—The second area for pk'ing. Stronger mob than in the first one, and the terrain is up and down for a while. This is also the home of the oil rig. It's right in the center of the area, and is quite popular with the noobies (if they can make it past the mob). Expect a fight for the oil when you get there. Located near the south-eastern edge of Eudoria.
- PvP3—the last PvP zone in the mainland. Also the most dangerous. Not because of the mob or the other players, but of the air in the zone is filled with poisons, that you need an anti-radiation injection before even entering the ring. This can be purchased at any TT for 5 PED. The mob are very fast, very strong and some are in the air as well as the ground. To top it off, it's also the only location that if you are killed by a player, they can loot your stackable items (PEC, PED, ores, etc.), so be extremely careful in this are if you are a miner, as you will have much more to lose than the hunters.

TIP: Avoid the PvP site as much as possible when you are not prepared for it.

PvP areas and rules (continued)

PvP areas

Places to PK

- Amethera—Except in some locations, this entire island is a PK zone. Whether this will change in the future or not, be careful on your trips over. While most people keep to themselves, it's not uncommon for a few players to pk here. No looting zone.
- Octagons—Not a safe zone, but a secluded area where people can challenge other people in a boxing ring type arena and fight for fun. They are scattered on the main land, at Billy's Spaceship afterworld, Twin Peaks and a few other locations.

Things to Note

- When you approach a PvP zone, you will receive a notification on your main information bar that you will be entering an unsafe zone.
- When you exit an unsafe zone, you will still be able to take damage for another 30 seconds. Keep this in mind when in a firefight.
- Only PvP3 can you loot others.
- Mining is usually good in these areas.

TIP: Carry lots of ammo in a PvP zone.

The Mob

The ugly things on PE

While you're the colonist, it's their planet, and they're not too happy with their new visitors. Whether it's the flimsy dipri, or the raging atrox alpha, they will engage in battle even if they are outnumbered or outgunned. They are all around Calypso, and they tend to stick around in groups.

Common Mob

While there are too many mob to count, here's a quick list of the most common mob you will run into during your adventures.

- Snablesnots—male and Female. These are good beginner mob to train on. Squirt green goo out of their noses. Seen mostly around camp phoenix and Billy's spaceship afterworld.
- Berycled—Slightly tougher than a snable. These attack with their claws. Seen mostly around camp phoenix and fort fury.
- Feffoid—Large beast with huge fist. Punches pack a lighting charge. Seen mostly east of camp phoenix and around Twin Peaks.
- Robots—scattered everywhere. Generation and rank differentiate the different difficulty. Have good loot but deadly to encounter alone. Will sometimes gather together to invade a city or port in a mass attack. Grab your guns and defend the colony!

TIP: Take care not to battle more than 1 opponent at a time.

Tips

- Train on the small mob first. Not only is it good to kill, but also a way to increase your defensive skills, such as evade and combat reflexes .

Items

Things to have

There are hundreds if not thousands of items on Calypso, and while some are worthless PED wise or some too rare, the most common ones are placed here.

Common Items

Most can be bought from a TT or bought from a crafter, but they should be part of anyone's equipment bag.

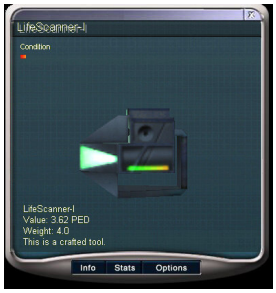

FAP-5 (fast aid Pack)

These are quite handy for hunting parties to have, especially hunting low level mobs. These heal the user or heal a target avatar. FAP's come in many flavors, ranging in size and amount it can heal.

Life-Scanner

Not much to this little tool, just point and shoot. When you have a target a nice window will pop up, reviling information about your target. Whether it's a mob, another player or a robot, you can gain good skills from this.

TIP: Get new from TT if not available by another player.

Survival blade

When your main gun or weapon goes out of action, things might look grim. Not to fear, whip out your survival blade! Does basic damage and can get you out of sticky situations.

Armor

Items that save your own hide

While fighting atrox is perfectly fine, chances are it's best not to confront one with only your boxers. Having a good set of armor can greatly reduce the amount of damage done to you, but different armors protect against different kinds of attacks. Below is a quick rundown of different armors. Just remember, it absorbs a percentage of the damage; it will not take all of it.

Pixie

Good beginner armor, this protects against most damages from snables and berycled attacks. Can be bought at auctions or looted.

Price ranges for each piece of armor from 1—5 PED depending on seller and condition of armor.

Settler

Also decent armor to start with. Can be bought from TT at full condition. Protect against small mob.

Price ranges for each piece of armor from 1.85—5.50 PED depending on the item you get.

TIP: Armor comes in two flavors: Male and Female. Male avatars cannot wear female armor, and same thing for females.

Shadow

One of the toughest armors to find. Also the one that protects the best against the baddest foes out there. So hard to find, that only those who have it have the last remaining pieces of it in existence.

Needless to say, expect to pay big for these if they are on sale.

Armor (continued)

Armor Tips

Beware of the condition of armor

There is a lot of armor out there in the auctions, and some are cheap, and some aren't. Be sure to check the condition of the armor before buying.

Wear and tear

While armor protects well against most attacks when it's at full condition, as your armor wears down the amount of damage it protects will be reduced. So a settler armor at full condition will protect more than the same thing when it's down to about 1 PED. Keep this in mind when investing in armor.

Does the armor break?

Well, it doesn't break, it just stops protecting you as it should until it's repaired.

TIP: Buy pixie or goblin armor for beginners.

Mentorship

Spread the wealth of knowledge

Being a mentor can help a newbie turn into a man (well, less of a noob anyway…).

Mentorship is a way for MA to thank the experienced players for helping the newcomers get their footing in Project Entropia and to help them grow. Mentors answer questions, lead disciples around to the TP's and help them become a productive member of society. As rewards for successfully training a noobie to a certain level, you will receive special items, items that can only be gotten by being a mentor.

How to be a mentor

In order to be a mentor, you must have at least one of your three main professions as an 'Unskilled'. Being unskilled is having 150 levels of one skill. Once you have this, you can become a mentor. Stay around areas that will have a lot of newcomer traffic, such as Port Atlantis or camp phoenix.

Once you have an interested person, talk with them about what you can and cannot do for them so they won't have questions about your mentor relationships. Give them some time to think it over, and if they agree to be your mentor, right click them and under interaction, click 'add disciple'.

TIP: Stick around Port Atlantis or Camp phoenix if you want to find disciples.

How to be a disciple

If you're a newcomer to Project Entropia, having a mentor is not required, but it is a good thing to have if you have questions about things. While a mentor is there to help you out, he/she will probably not fork over a bunch of PED and good items and tell you to go splurge. Though there are good people out there, don't be demanding of your mentor. Look for a mentor with guidance, not deep pockets.

Once you find a mentor that seems suitable for you, chat with the mentor for a while and see how things might work out. If needed, give a few days' thought about it before getting back to him/her. When you are ready, chat with the person to become their disciple.

The big 3

Once you are a disciple of someone, you have a small three day window to disconnect the mentor/disciple bond. If for some reason you need to do this, go to your avatar information window ('k' on the default keyboard), then click on the disciple/mentor button below your three professions. Then click on your mentor, then the boot icon.

However, after the three day period, you cannot boot yourself from your mentor. Only your mentor may end the bond. If for a reason you want to leave your mentor, you will have to talk with them so they can kick you out of the bond.

Mentorship (continued)

Mentor/disciple Tips

Mentor Tips

If a newcomer who wants to be your disciple wants items and/or money to be your disciple, do not give them anything...yet. Say that you can give them things, AFTER the three days...this is to prevent the newbie from getting your stuff, then breaking the bond and finding someone else to get things from. Cheap, yes but I've seen it, being a mentor myself.

If one of your disciple leaves/quits/stops playing for a long time, you can go to your avatar info window, open the mentor window, then boot the inactive player so you can concentrate your efforts on your current disciples.

Keep your disciples on your buddy list, this way they can communicate to you in game if they have questions or other comments.

Disciple Tips

Scout around the camp phoenix or PA area and check out different mentors to see who you like the best. Just picking the first one you see is ok, but you might end up with a mentor that is not your type.

Once you find one, say you will think about it and add them to your buddy list so when your ready you can set up a time in game to meet.

If you decide to quit being a disciple after the three days, you may be too experienced to become a disciple for someone else.

TIP: Use your training from your mentor as a guide to make you a good mentor when your capable of becoming one.

I believe 'Dino' says it the best:

Give a noob a fish, feed him for a day.
Teach a noob to fish and feed him for a lifetime.

I couldn't agree more ; -)

Manners and how to behave

Treat others as you would like to be treated

Yes, even though it's in the virtual world, remember that there are real people behind those avatars. People with feelings. So don't think it's open to curse and yell, otherwise your game playing experience will degrade rapidly. Below are a few common tips to play safely, and to above all have fun.

Be kind

Saying a simple 'hello' or 'hey' to a person you see online can make good contact and possibly a new friend or hunting buddy. Do say 'Thanks' for being helped or 'sorry' if you took someone else's kill by accident. Being nice can take you a long way than being rude.

Communicate etiquette

So much is done by chatting that there are common grounds that people like being talked to and not being harassed.

- Don't be shy—Just going up to people and trying to trade with them or for whatever reason without talking first is rude, as the other person has no idea what your doing, and your wasting their time. Talk before attempting to do anything with them.
- Talk English, not gibberish—"Can U C me b4 I go" isn't good compared to just typing "Can you see me before I go?". It's a bit childish, and those who can't speak English well will think your crazy.
- Don't beg—The bane of all people on PE, is for newbies to come up and ask for free stuff, or as the tricky ones say 'borrow'. Just politely say 'NO', then point them in the direction of the oil rig or tell them to walk around for a bit and find fruit. Do not give in. Or tell them to find a mentor. That will either work, or will send them flying from the area to bug people elsewhere.
- Don't SPAM—perhaps the more annoying thing than a lot of people chatting is a person who keeps saying "COME GIVE ME MONEY! COME GIVE ME MONEY!" over and over again. Typing in capes gives anyone else who's reading it that your yelling, and the repeated messages will definitely get the nerve of somebody who will get mad. While MA has taken steps to repeal spamming, it still gets through sometimes.
- Don't stare—Yes, there are people in nice clothing out there, but going up to see their backside then running off is annoying, and quite rude. Would you do that to your real-life girlfriend? Yeah, didn't think so.

TIP: Don't beg. You'll mostly end up with people harassing you and yelling. Go to the rig if your that desperate.

So just remember, the planet is virtual, but the people are real. Be nice :)

Societies

Be one big group

While being a freelancer is ok, wouldn't you like to join a group of people who share your interest? Are you a miner who like mining? Then you can join a society of people who mine, or crate your own! You can access all this and more from a soc terminal.

Find a group

When you first operate a soc terminal, you can search though all of the existing societies to see what they do and who's in them. You can also apply to be in their society. Memberships must be granted, it's not automatic.

Create your own group

Didn't find a society that wasn't your taste? How about making your own? Just click 'create society', then fill out the form that follows. Put in your societies' name, a short description of it so people who look it up can find what your society is all about, and then rankings and so forth. Once you fill it out, your society is automatically created, and your freelancer status is replaced with your rank and society name.

NOTE: In order for your society to last you must have five other people join your society in seven days after you create it. Otherwise the society will disband and you will be back to a freelancer.

So what's out there?

Currently there are over 200 different societies in PE, but only a few stand among the most known.

- Entropia Pioneers—Group of people who were among the first to play Project Entropia. Good players with lots of experience in all fields. Also very knowledgeable and ready to help those with questions.
- Coat Killers (ck) - Group of people who roam the PvP zones and kill other players for a living. One of the original groups from the start of PE, they are highly skilled players. Usually decked out in all shadow armor, they are people to fear about when you see them. Run like crazy if you find one in a PvP zone...just might make it out alive.
- Miners of the Mountain—group of high level miners that hit big deposit more often than others.
- Natural Born Killers (N.B.K) - Large group of people who hunt for a living. Find them in the wild or PvP zones.

TIP: Use these terminals if you want to find more info on a society, or to create your own.

Slang Terms

Be with the 'in' groups

Here is a rundown of all the abbreviated words and the like people use to speak with so you're not standing there looking like a newbie.

Project Entropia Terms

- TT—Trade Terminal
- TP—Teleporter
- PA—Port Atlantis
- MA—MindArk
- HOF—Hall of fame
- ATH—All time high
- ADJ—Adjusted
- MOD—Modified
- MOB—beastie

TIP: Know these words so you can tell people are saying.

General Terms

LOL—Lots of Laughs	NOOB—Newcomer, inexperienced	WOOT! - Good thing	BBL—Be back later
JK—Just Kidding	Ubber—REALLY good grab	PvP—Person vs. Person	GTG—Got to go
ROTFL—Rolling on the floor laughing	VU—Version Update	BRB—Be right back	CTD—Crash to Desktop
OMG—Oh my god	ATM—At the moment	NN—Night Night	TY—Thank you
NP—No Problem	NPC—Non Player Character	YW—You're welcome	ASAP—As soon as possible

Map—Eudoria

Mind Ark's
PROJECT
ENTROPIA
Version 6.0
Continent Eudoria
updated Sept. 24th 2004
Fort Zeus
North Space Base
Lake Serene
Unique Ground Pattern
Raven Village
Rogue Plains North
Rogue Plains Hangar
Rogue Plains
Fort Argus
Raven Valley
Rogue Plains South
Fort Caravan
Fort Ithaca
Rock Monuments
Cape Corinth
Corinth Beach
(unnamed)
Corinth Hangar
North-West Echidna
Camp Echidna
Empty Building
Giant Mushrooms
Hadesheim East
Hadesheim C.
Abandoned Tent
Feffoid Trader, only Trade
Abandoned Camp
Atlas Island North
only Revive
Dino Skeleton
Aegis Mound
Battle Remains
Dino Skeleton
Chimera Canyons
Mornington Castle
(unnamed)
Minopolis
South Hadesheim
Hadesheim Outpost
Abandoned Tent Camps
Tethys Creek
Atlas Haven
Atlas Haven West
Atlas Island South
Fort Pandora
Giant Mushroom
Abandoned Town
Fort Ares
Radar Station
Fort Medusa
Over 500 m high
Fort Fury
Dino Skeleton
Rainbow Fog
Crashed Spaceship
Radar Station
only Revive
Battle Remains
Limnadian District
Empty Outpost
Catwalk
Nymphtown
Lake Serene
Orthos West Mound
Battle Remains
Billy's Spaceship Afterworld
Camp Phoenix
Cave
Jason Center
Sunbathing Skeleton
Abandoned House
Abandoned Tower
Crashed Spaceship
Battle Remains
Dino Skeleton
Battle Remains
Zychion
Abandoned Towns
Crashed Spaceship
Various Platforms
East Scylla Mountains
Twin Peaks
Crashed Spaceship
Crashed Spaceship
Port Atlantis
Spiral shaped Mountain
Strength Keep
Fort Troy
Hidden Island
Teleport
Unofficial Outpost
Special Point of Interest
Octagon Boxing Ring
Umbranoid Town
Robot Spaceship
Bridge
Oil Rig
Auction
Estate Area
Original map work by Darts, extended version by

Map—Amerthera

Map—Crystal Palace

Credits

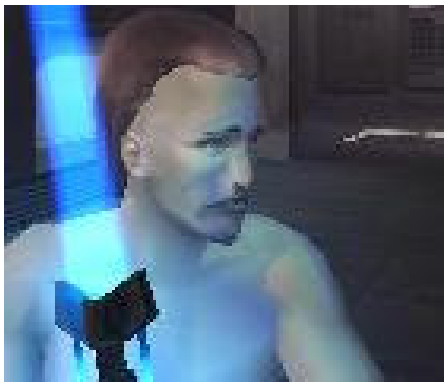

The end

Creating, editing, imaging and publishing

Odd 'sir odd' Bunny

Proof Readers:

Dinara, Konve, SpegTater, Epictetus, mrproper, AJack10600

Odd 'sir odd' Bunny with his favorite weapon.

Thank you for all those who helped in the creation of this guide. While this is just a small block of information that's out for Project Entropia, I hope this guide serves you well in your journey.

Sites of interest:

http://www.project-entropia.com - the PE home

http://www.mindark.com/ - creators of PE

http://entropia-pioneers.kicks-ass.org/ - the site of the Entropia Pioneers

http://www.mytwopecs.com - site with real time updates on the pricing of everything you need to know

http://oddbunny.blogspot.com/ - the place where I write down my adventures and tell my story. Come by and visit once and a while.

VU 8.0.2 updates

PROJECT ENTROPIA VERSION UPDATE 8.0
2005-12-19

 PLEASE READ THIS DOCUMENT IF YOU FIND SOMETHING OUT OF THE ORDINARY IN PROJECT ENTROPIA! IT MIGHT PROVIDE THE INFO YOU NEED BEFORE CONTACTING PROJECT ENTROPIA SUPPORT! ***

VERSION UPDATE FEATURES

Asteroid Space Resort
The first phase of the Asteroid Space Resort, called "Club NEVERDIE" is up. The active features in this phase are the Biodomes, Apartments, public facilities, and the main complex. Next phase will see the Nightclub, advertising system, and other areas.

New music added
A massive load of new music has been added to Project Entropia, including the Club NEVERDIE theme song!

Christmas is all around
Project Entropia participants receive gifts, based on their level of commitment to the development of Project Entropia.

Storage boxes
Several varieties of storage boxes have been added to Project Entropia, both as loot and as manufactured items.

More data in Items Info
More info shown, for instance the weapons now present their respective category.

Auction updates
Several categories in the auction have been split into more detailed counterparts, for instance armor is now gender based, and there are more sections for mining tools, which allow for clearer browsing.

Also, a transport cost has been added for long range auction transfers of items. Sometimes it may be cheaper to physically go to the zone where the initial auction was started.

New minerals and enmatters
Geologists have found several kinds of new minerals and enmatters on the Asteroid.

VU 8.0.2 updates

More info and feedback
Various help sections has been enhanced with more feedback, for instance when a disciple kicks a mentor.

New creatures
Imperial survey teams have reported new creature sightings.

Stabling updates
Several updates have been made to enhance the pet stabling process.

More scenery
More scenery and visual objects have been added to Project Entropia.

Release 8.0.2

- The faulty trick with the Exarosaur has been fixed.
- Minor visual fixes to Club NEVERDIE.
- Fixed animation optimization on creatures.
- The client now updates the amount section in the repair terminal.

An issue where you could get blocked when trying to refuel a spacecraft has been fixed.

Project Entropia Conditions of Use

This Agreement ("Agreement") is made by and between MindArk PE AB ("MindArk") and the Participant ("Participant") who wishes to use Project Entropia. By accepting this Agreement, the Participant agrees to it in its entirety, effective immediately.

MindArk is the owner of a System ("System"), identified as Project Entropia.

In consideration of the promises set forth herein, the parties hereto agree as follows:

1. Arrangement

This Agreement is a legal document that details your rights and obligations as a Project Entropia participant entitled to a participant account and to access and use certain of MindArk's services. You cannot become a Project Entropia participant until you have accepted the terms of this Agreement.

MindArk agrees to provide Project Entropia as is to the Participant, and the Participant agrees to accept Project Entropia, subject to the terms of this Agreement

This Agreement is your entire agreement with MindArk and governs your use of the System. There may be additional terms and conditions if you use affiliate systems, other MindArk systems or products, or third-party software and/or systems. To be a participant, you must be at least 18 years old. If you are not 18 years old but you are at least 13 years old, you may still partake, but only if your account was created and registered by your parent or guardian. This Agreement will be void and without effect, and you will not be entitled access to Project Entropia, if you do not satisfy the age requirement.

Participant agrees not to translate, modify, copy, printout, disassemble, de-compile or otherwise tamper with Project Entropia system, code, or any firmware, circuit board or software provided therewith. The Participant also agrees not to hack into or interfere with any data communication to or from the Project Entropia servers, clients, and systems, as well as not to use any other software than the Project Entropia client to interpret or influence data sent to or from the Project Entropia server and client systems. The participant also agrees upon not using any third party software or equipment that influences Project Entropia in any way. The participant agrees upon not tampering, removing (except complete uninstallation), adding, or changing the installed Project Entropia client software and its associated files in any way whatsoever.

2. Description

MindArk provides Project Entropia as a service, described as a virtual universe. Project Entropia is not a "game".

Upon completing the registration process, you will receive a password and account that is uniquely associated with your participation.

Project Entropia Conditions of Use

All of your access to the system will be through that account, except as otherwise set forth in this Agreement. An account supplies access to MindArk's online virtual universe. In the virtual universe you will be able to interact with other participants and online constructs. Your interactions will be through an "Avatar", or virtual persona/alter-ego, and is regulated by the Rules of Conduct section below.

You agree to obey with the limits set on your account by your category of participation. You further agree to obey with the Rules of Conduct. Violation of the Rules of Conduct may result in termination of your account.

3. Privacy

MindArk gives access to a virtual universe to participants all over the world. A participant is able to interact with none, few or many of these participants. MindArk intends to keep the identity of each participant private to him or herself. A participant may choose to appear with his or her own name or use a nickname in the virtual universe.

MindArk registers participants for the necessity to transfer money between the real and the virtual world, between MindArk and the participant. MindArk will never divulge registered information to any outside party.

MindArk may monitor or register a participant's behaviour and collect client system data if necessary to detect and counteract fraud, rules violation, and in order to balance the load on the system.

4. License

Participant acknowledges that he or she shall have only a limited, non-exclusive, license to use Project Entropia. Participant acknowledges and agrees that he or she will not use Project Entropia for any purpose that is illegal (see "Governing Law"). Participant agrees that he or she will use Project Entropia carefully and will not use it in any way that might result in any loss of his or her or any third party's property or information. MindArk will not take any responsibility if this should occur.

5. Termination

MindArk may terminate this Agreement upon notice to Participant. Such termination may be made without reason, and may be for one or more or all Participants.

You can cancel your account by filing a request through the Project Entropia Support Section. MindArk reserves the right to collect fees, surcharges or costs incurred before you cancel your account. In addition, you are responsible for any charges incurred to third-party vendors or content providers prior to your cancellation.

In the event that your account is terminated or cancelled, no refund will be granted. Any delinquent or unresolved issues relating to former participation must be resolved before MindArk will permit you to have a new account. All provisions of this Agreement that by their nature should survive termination of this Agreement do survive its termination, including, but not limited to, provisions on ownership, proprietary rights, warranty disclaimers and liability and remedy limitations.

Project Entropia Conditions of Use

6. Ownership and Transactions

The participant deposits funds in advance and have the right to withdraw funds on the avatar that are not spent.

Virtual items will often have names similar or identical to corresponding physical categories such as "people," "real estate," "possessions," and the names of specific items in those categories such as "house," "rifle," "tools," "armor," etc. Despite the similar names, all virtual items are part of the System and MindArk retains all rights, title, and interest in all parts including, but not limited to Avatars and Virtual items; these retained rights include, without limitation, patent, copyright, trademark, trade secret and other proprietary rights throughout the world.

As part of your interactions with the System, you may acquire, create, design, or modify Virtual items, but you agree that you will not gain any ownership interest whatsoever in any Virtual item, and you hereby assign to MindArk all of your rights, title and interest in any such Virtual item.

All and any trade with Virtual items, virtual funds, as well as real fund transactions, must be done through MindArk approved procedures. Any such transactions carried out using any non-approved procedure is a violation and can result in a lockdown of any involved account. If you are unsure if a certain transaction is approved or not, you must contact the Project Entropia support for confirmation.

7. MindArk's Warranties

MindArk represents and warrants that it has the requisite right and legal authority to grant the license and to provide Project Entropia. Project Entropia is not warranted by MindArk to be error or bug free. MindArk makes no other warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to Project Entropia. All warranties, whether expressed or implied, are hereby disclaimed, including, without limitation, the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose.

8. Governing Law

This Agreement is to be governed by, construed and enforced according to the laws of Sweden.

9. Accounts and Fund Transfers

MindArk acknowledges the responsibility to maintain records of all transactions in accordance with corresponding Swedish Legislation. Account deficits in any situation apart from those described herein are the responsibility of the Participant. MindArk accepts no responsibility for funds misplaced or misused in any incidence, regardless of reason.

10. MindArk's Limitation of Responsibility

The participant agree to not hold MindArk and affiliated subsidiaries, employees, contractors, officers, directors, telecommunications providers and content providers liable for any claims and expenses, including attorneys fees, that arise from a breach of this Agreement or are made by third parties related to your use of Project Entropia or the Internet, or in connection with your transmission of any content using Project Entropia.

MindArk shall, in no event, be liable for any damages, loss or expense including without limitation, direct, indirect, special or consequential damage, or economic loss arising from the use of Project Entropia. MindArk's liability towards any Participant shall in each incidence be limited to no more than the initial amount transferred by said Participant into Project Entropia.

MindArk reserves the right to interrupt Project Entropia with or without prior notice for any reason or no reason. You agree that MindArk will not be liable for any interruption of Project Entropia, delay or failure to perform.

11. No Assignment

This Agreement shall be binding upon and inured to the benefit of the parties and their respective administrators, successors and assigns.

12. Headings

Headings used in this Agreement are provided for convenience only and shall not be used to construe meaning or intent.

13. Changes to the System

MindArk may, at any time, update, revise or change the internal data and balancing of the System, without any notice or responsibility for compensation due to loss or gain of value due to these changes.

14. Participant Responsibility

As a participant you are responsible for all activity on your account. You also understand that you cannot divulge your account information, including the login and/or password to anyone. MindArk never asks for this information and all communication with MindArk is conducted through the secure Support section, located in the Project Entropia client software or through the World Wide Web.

If you should happen to willfully or otherwise reveal your password, you have relinquished your right to any assistance regarding the possible outcomes or consequences based upon your actions.

You agree to hold MindArk harmless for any improper or illegal use of your account. This includes illegal or improper use by someone to whom you have given permission to use your account. Your account may be terminated if you let someone use it inappropriately. If your participation is terminated for any reason, MindArk is under no obligation to supply Project Entropia to you in the future.

15. Rules of Conduct

The virtual universe is filled with real people interacting in the form of avatars. Consider the feelings of other people in what you say and do. You're relating to a real person, not a computer character. Think before you speak or act, or you may make mistakes that will prevent you from making friends and becoming part of the larger community. Treat others like you want to be treated. Show respect.

Speak up for your opinions, but don't assault other people. Harassment, defamation, abuse, or threats against others through words, pictures or actions are not allowed and could result in account suspension or termination.

As a participant in the virtual universe of Project Entropia you must abide by the following rules. If you break any of these rules, your right to participate in Project Entropia may be immediately terminated by MindArk without any claims whatsoever.

- a. You cannot impersonate any member of MindArk staff, or fellow participants. You cannot impersonate being a MindArk staff member, employee, or claim having association with MindArk if you don’t really are/have one. You cannot create any society that would indicate such links.

- b. You cannot threaten, harass, cause grief or distress to any MindArk staff in or outside the virtual universe, including, but not limited to, IRC channels or public web forums.

- c. You cannot advertise anything in the virtual universe not associated with the virtual universe itself.

- d. You cannot interfere with any other participant’s ability to enjoy Project Entropia according to its rules.

- e. You cannot harass, threaten, cause grief or distress to another participant in Project Entropia.

- f. You are forbidden to ‘spam’ and/or ‘flood’ the communication system, or abuse functions in Project Entropia to cause effects not intended.

- g. You cannot use sexually explicit or offensive language.

- h. You cannot create virtual universe avatars hosting an explicit, racist, hateful, degrading, religious, sexual or other form of offensive alias.

- i. You cannot break the local laws in the state or country in which you live.

- j. You cannot use hateful language towards another participant’s gender, race, sexual orientation, intelligence, or religion.

- k. You are not allowed to create societies that are based on any sexist, racist, degrading or hateful philosophy directed towards real life companies, persons or organizations.

- l. You cannot engage in or communicate about any illegal activities, including pirated material, drugs or contraband.

- m. You cannot use the official Project Entropia site and/or virtual environment to supply the means of access to illegal software or materials.

- n. You must report errors and bugs to MindArk whenever you discover them. Neglecting to report errors or bugs, or using bugs or 'exploits' for own benefits may result in a termination of your Avatar account, including its virtual items, funds, and abilities.

- o. You cannot spread any rumors about MindArk, Project Entropia, and MindArk Staff or Partners, that can be considered potentially damaging, using Project Entropia, IRC or any other public forums, for example a web space.

You acknowledge these rules and agree to abide by them. You also agree that you are responsible for your Project Entropia account and these same rules apply to anybody you allow to use your account

16. Violation to the conditions

If you violate any part of this Agreement, your account may be terminated, locked, or warned in the form of a temporary lockdown. Any action taken against your account due to a violation is the decision of MindArk and is final. Any claims, virtual items, funds, etc, located on a locked avatar account is forfeit and any fund transactions pending are revoked.

17. Final Agreement

This Agreement terminates and supersedes all prior understandings or agreements on the subject matter hereof.

By accepting this Agreement and becoming a participant you agree that MindArk may, at any time, update, revise or change this Agreement. If MindArk makes material changes or revisions to this Agreement, MindArk will provide notice to you, via the e-mail address you provided upon registration. Your continued participation in Project Entropia after notification of changes means that you accept the changes. If you do not want to accept the changes proposed by MindArk or to any of the terms in this Agreement, your only remedy is to cancel your account and cease using Project Entropia.